Summary

Passionate about everything digital, especially video games and how they are made. I am very interested in Information Technology and eager to learn aspects, and adapt to new innovative technology advancements. I consider myself to be a confident, honest and reliable person and I would like to work in a progressive and dynamic environment. I am always willing to learn new skills and to develop different aspects of myself. I take pride in being able to solve almost any issue through the help of my colleagues and Google. I believe I can add value to any company through my creativity, critical thinking and problem-solving skills
